Press. 12 February 1926 (Papers Past) [15/05/2017]

RABBITER DROWNED.

(SPECIAL TO "THE PRESS.")

KAIKOURA, February 11.

Constable Hodgson received information yesterday that a rabbiter named Andrew Gibson, about 45 years of age and single, had been drowned in the Clarence river at Bluff Point, over the ranges from Kaikoura. Gibson had informed his mate that he would endeavour to swim the river, which is in flood. After getting into the swollen stream he was not again seen. Arrangements have been made to drag for the body at the first available opportunity.

Press. 12 February 1926 (Papers Past) [17/05/2017]

The body of George Andrew Gibson, who was drowned in the Clarence river, has been found.

Timaru Herald. 13 February 1926 (Papers Past) [09/09/2020]

RABBITER DROWNED.

By Telegraph—Press Association.

KAIKOURA, February 11.

Constable Hodgson received information yesterday that a rabbiter named Andrew Gibson, about 45 years of age and single, had been drowned in the Clarence River at Bluff Point, over the ranges from Kaikoura. Gibson. had informed his mate that he would endeavour to swim the river, which is in flood. After getting into the swollen stream, he was not again seen. Arrangements have been made to drag for the body at the first available opportunity.

Press. 17 February 1926 (Papers Past) [09/09/2020]

BODY FOUND

The body of George Andrew Gibson, who was drowned in the Clarence river, has been found.

NORTH CANTERBURY

KAIKOURA.

The body of Andrew Alexander Gibson, who was drowned in the Clarence River on February 9th, was recovered by Constable Byrne on Monday, and brought to the Clarence Reserve station; where an inquest was held before Mr A. B. Clark, Acting-Coroner, and a jury. Mr George Aires was foreman. Evidence was given by Douglas Mein, deceased's mate, who described how Gibson made an attempt to cross the river to secure a horse, and by constable Byrne, regarding the recovery of the body about nine miles from where deceased had entered the river. The jury found that the deceased came by his death through drowning in the Clarence River while attempting to cross when the river was in flood on February 9th. No blame was attachable to anyone, and the jury considered that Mein had acted wisely in not going into the river while it was high and dirty, as he would probably have shared the same fate.