

Otago Daily Times. 14 June 1915 [07/03/2015]

PRIVATE MACKIE.

Private Robert C. Mackie (killed in action at the Dardanelles) was for the 12 months before he left for the war in Mr J. Docherty's employ in Dunedin. He joined the Canterbury Infantry shortly after the outbreak of war, in Timaru. He was a member of the Mornington Wednesday Association Football Club, for which he played in the half-back line, and he was chosen to represent the Otago Wednesday Association in its representative team, but having enlisted, he was unable to travel to Invercargill. The many Wednesday players who knew him, express their deepest sympathy to his relatives. He belonged to the Glasgow Volunteers, and came to New Zealand about two years ago.

Evening Star. 14 June 1915 [05/05/2022]

PRIVATE MACKIE.

Private Robert C. Mackie (killed in action at the Dardanelles) was for the 12 months before he left for the war in Mr J. Docherty's employ in Dunedin. He joined the Canterbury infantry shortly after the outbreak of war in Timaru. He was a member of the Mornington Wednesday Association Football Club, for which he played in the half-back line. He belonged to the Glasgow Volunteers, and came to New Zealand about two years ago.

Press. 15 June 1915 [26/04/2016]

THE FALLEN AND WOUNDED.

PERSONAL NOTES.

PRIVATE R. C. MACKIE.

Private Robert C. Mackie (Canterbury Battalion, killed) was for the 12 months before he left for the war, in Mr J. Docherty's employ in Dunedin. He joined the Canterbury Infantry, shortly after the outbreak of war, in Timaru. He was a member of the Mornington Wednesday Association Football Club, for which he played in the half-back [line]. He belonged to the Glasgow Volunteers, and came to New Zealand about two years ago.